From the Editors Desk

I just recently came across this small story. I am sure you've probably heard the old tale of the engineer who charged $10,000 for fixing a machine — $1 for turning a screw and $9,999 for knowing which screw to turn.

That wasn't just a made-up story. The engineer was real. His name was Charles Proteus Steinmetz (1865–1923), and he was a genius in electrical engineering.

Henry Ford encountered a serious issue at his River Rouge plant one day. A massive generator had malfunctioned, and none of Ford's top engineers could figure out what was wrong. So, Ford called in Steinmetz.

When Steinmetz arrived, he asked for three things: a notebook, a pen, and a cot. Then, he spent two days and nights in the plant, listening to the generator and scribbling mysterious calculations.

Finally, he asked for a ladder, a tape measure, and some chalk. Slowly, he climbed to the top of the generator, measured a spot, and marked it with a chalk "X".

Then he turned to the engineers and said:

"Take off this panel, unwind the coil from this exact point, and remove 16 turns of wire.

"They followed his instructions — and just like that, the generator was humming again, good as new.

A few days later, Ford received an invoice from Steinmetz $10,000 Surprised by the steep fee, Ford asked for an itemized breakdown.

Steinmetz replied:

- Making chalk mark: $1
- Knowing where to put it: $9,999

Ford paid the bill. No complaints, no questions.

This engineer was just four feet tall, his body curved by a hump in his back and a crooked gait, and his stunted torso gave the illusion that his head, hands, and feet were too big.

But he was a giant among scientific thinkers, counting Albert Einstein, Nikola Tesla, and Thomas Edison as friends.

If you contemplate and think, you will undoubtedly see a deeper meaning, as this story isn't just about expertise or confidence. It's about purpose, legacy, and the hidden depth of a meaningful life.

- Greatness isn't always loud — it's often humble, patient, and quiet.

Steinmetz didn't show off or call for attention. He simply asked for a notebook, a pen, and a cot and sat in silence for days, listening to a machine and trusting his mind.

An important life lesson: Sometimes your greatest contribution comes not from talking, but from Watching, Listening. Thinking and Knowing.

- We all have a unique ‘X’ to mark — our calling, our purpose.

Steinmetz spent years studying the invisible forces of electricity. But what gave his life meaning wasn't just his knowledge, but how he used it at the exact moment.

- What it tells us: Everyone has a moment in life when they're called to mark an “X” — to make a decision, solve a problem, change a life.

That moment may seem small, but it might be the moment you leave your mark on the world.

- Legacy isn't about being known — it's about being remembered.

Steinmetz didn't build empires or chase fame. Yet long after his death, this story lives on. Why? Because in one moment, he gave clarity, hope, and resolution — and people never forget who brings the light back when everything's dark.

Timeless takeaway: It's not about how many people know your name. It's about how many lives you quietly light up.

- You are not your body — you are your mind, your heart, and the impact that you make.

Despite a hunched back, short frame, and physical limitations, Steinmetz was a giant of intellect.

Deeper reflection: The world may judge appearances. But true power? True identity? That lives inside — in how you think, help, and show up when it matters.

- There is deep beauty in being needed, and deep peace in knowing what you're here for.

In that moment, Steinmetz was the only one who knew what to do. And he did it without hesitation.

That's the soul's fulfillment — not just being smart, but being useful.

True success: Not applause, not wealth, but being of service when the world needs you most.

This story might seem like a tale about a smart man and a machine. But really, it's about the quiet power of knowing your purpose, trusting your path, and being the answer when everything else has failed.

As Carl Jung once said - The privilege of a lifetime is to become who you truly are”.

This issue wraps up the year gone by, with more learning, more teaching, and lots of new initiatives for the coming year.

The past months have brought moments of meaning—milestones, memories, and quiet reflections. I'm grateful for the chance to share, grow, and connect. Thank you for being part of this journey.

Third and Grand Finale Workshop on Building Biology

A comprehensive roadmap to becoming a Certified Building Biologist.

This pioneering workshop introduces groundbreaking concepts and innovations developed by Mayank in Building Biology, drawing from over 25 years of dedicated research.

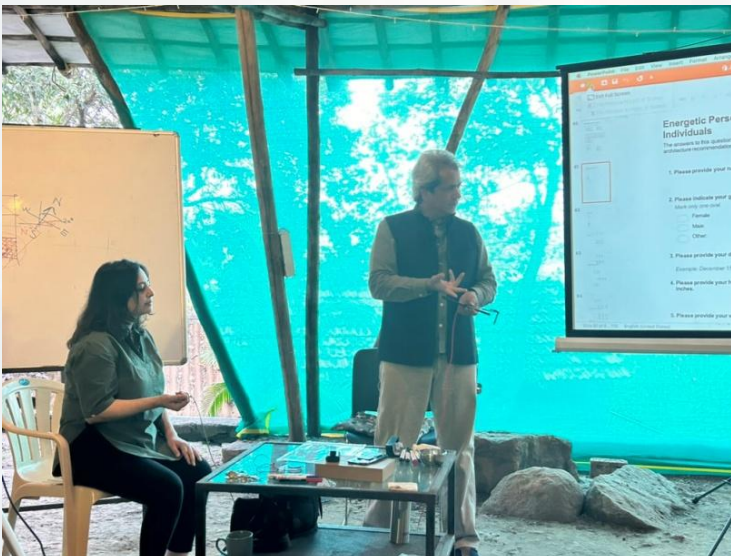

The Key points taken up were as follows -

- Vastu Vaastu and the synergy between both.
- Advanced learning of Bio-Energetics and Geopathy
- Protocols & Process of Energy Scanning
- NEP - Naduhl Energy Profile – covered in the workshop for the first time
- Profiling of people & site
- NPP - Naduhl Personality Profile - Algorithms / Flowcharts
- Home Health Audit Case studies - Commercial / Industrial & Intuitional Projects
- On-site practical - Energy Measurement with tools / Analysis Assessment & Evaluation

This month was an enriching and explorative journey as I visited the Ellora Caves. It was an incredible opportunity to study the sacred geometrical patterns and immerse myself in the historical energies surrounding these ancient caves, including the magnificent Kailasa Temple.

Ellora Caves, a UNESCO World Heritage Site in India, comprise a remarkable collection of Hindu, Buddhist, and Jain rock-cut caves. My exploration of the Jain caves provided valuable insights that contributed to my research on Jain Stupas, which I consider the True Jain Temples.

Workshop on Human & Environmental Energy
Measurement using the most advanced tool.
29th to 31st March 2024.

- Introduction to H3 & feeling Energies
- Physical Radiesthesia
- Understanding frequencies &
Practicing to use the Antenna
- Scanning of Holographic imprinted
information on Human & Space

March 24

This workshop held immense value not only for Energy Consultants but also for Architects and Builders, as it focused on scanning holographic imprints in spaces.

By learning these techniques, participants can design buildings or spaces that achieve energetic balance, promoting healthier living environments.

The workshop provided extensive hands-on practice to help participants effectively use the H3 Gold Lecher Antenna and begin communicating with it.

Key techniques covered included dowsing with the H3 Gold Lecher Antenna—both on paper and through onsite measurements—to identify and address geopathic stress frequencies accurately by following precise protocols.

A vital component of the workshop was the Home Health Audit, which emphasized assessing modern defects such as electromagnetic radiation and dirty electricity, ensuring a comprehensive evaluation for healthier homes.

The Story so far

Actual Site images

April was a significant month for Mayank Barjatya, as it witnessed the launch of his much-anticipated book, Kshama – Forgiveness in Architecture, centered on the concept of forgiveness in architectural design.

Forgiveness in Architecture

Book is available on amazon / www.vastuworld.com

Glimpses of the Book Launch with the blessing of Sri Vairagyarativijay Sahebji

Sahebji's words of wisdom , his insight and reflective thoughts on the book were truly an inspiration

"This captivating book, authored by Mayank Barjatya, is the result of years of meticulous research on the subject of forgiveness and the pivotal role architecture plays in facilitating the journey toward achieving it."

Insights from the Book

Author's Note – A Brief – Ar. Mayank Barjatya

In my opinion, most temples, save for a few exceptions, do not foster a meditative or Dhyana-inducing atmosphere. This sense of disconnection sparked my curiosity about the history of Jain temples, leading me on a journey of research to uncover the oldest existing temples or spaces where our revered Tirthankaras or spiritual leaders like Acharya Shri, Muni Maharaj Saheb, or Suriiji conducted their daily rituals of meditation.

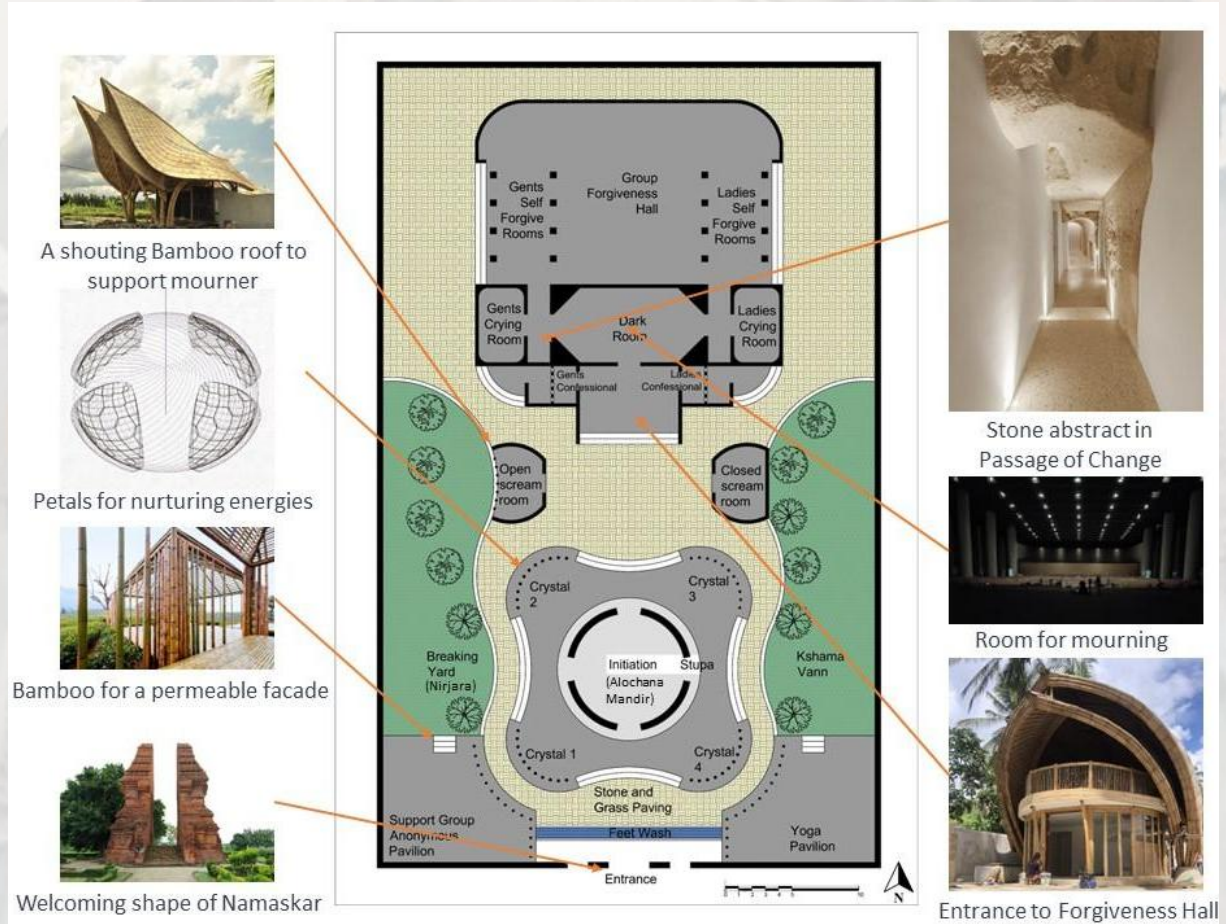

This quest eventually led me to explore caves and stupas. Upon visiting these spaces in person, I felt a profound connection to my Higher Self and found solace in meditating there. While I couldn't pinpoint the exact reasons at first, the simple shapes, minimal distractions, adherence to Jain philosophy, and other factors contributed to my blissful experience. Subsequently, as I delved deeper into my disconnection from conventional temples, I engaged with learned Jain scholars, leading me to a profound understanding of Jain teachings - particularly the concept of forgiveness as a means to attain spiritual bliss, social harmony, and inner peace.

This book delves into the resilience of the human spirit, underscoring the importance of self-reflection, personal growth, and the transformative power of forgiveness. It reminds us that during our darkest moments, compassion and understanding from others can serve as lifelines, guiding us towards healing and restoration.

My aim in writing this book is to integrate the concept of forgiveness into the daily Jain Pooja rituals and Vidhi Vidhan, rather than confining it to just 8 or 10 days a year. I advocate for the inclusion of forgiveness as a symbol or pattern in our personal temples and home pooja spaces.

This book encompasses my research, scientific findings, correlations, assumptions, and previously unknown facts. Additionally, I delve into historical references and case studies from various cultures worldwide, elucidating how other religions have embraced the science of forgiveness and incorporated it into their spiritual and divine spaces.

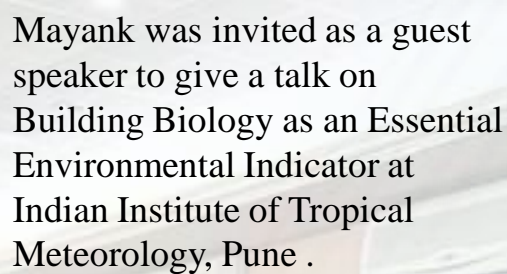

Towards the end of the book, Mayank proposes a design for a demonstrative forgiveness temple (Kshama Mandir), which he believes should be a part of every Jain temple complex, either already built or in the process of construction

In the words of Sri Vairagyarativijay Sahebji

Shri Mayank Barjatya presents this research as a significant gift to humanity in this century through his book “Forgiveness in Architecture”. Three specific features stood out to me.

- The book discusses forgiveness not only from a mental and spiritual perspective but also from a physical aspect.
- Detailed information is provided on aspects related to forgiveness such as shapes, symbols, substances, physical elements, colors, sound, actions, spatial organization, and architecture.
- A global conception of forgiveness is presented. Descriptions of forgiveness sites in various religions and communities around the world have also been presented here along with past and present-day case studies.

The photograph shows a man in a white shirt standing at a wooden podium, speaking into a microphone. Behind him is a large vertical banner with the 'yaha' logo and the text 'Wel-Come'. To his right, a large screen displays a presentation slide titled 'Environmental Indicators' with text about their definition and application.
